'Warcraft' is an epic fantasy adventure directed by Duncan Jones, and starring Travis Fimmel, Paula Patton, Ben Foster, dominic cooper and Toby kebbell. It is set for release from May and June 2016. Tencent's investment in the picture is a direct parallel to the investment in 'Mission : Impossible, Rogue Nation' by rival chinese Internet group Alibaba Pictures. Tencent was among the investors in 'Monster Hunt', which recently became the most successful film in Chinese cinemas, and has been making a major play into the entertainment business.

The announcement was part of a wider event for Tencent Pictures that saw the company unveiling new projects including a number of comic book adaptations, games and adaptations of books. Tencent is one of China's largest vidgame distributors. Internet giants Baidu, Alibaba and Tencent are moving into long form content generation and distribution. The deal with Wanda will see the two companies make use of China's largest private sector cinema chain to promote their content. Wanda Cinemas is a separately listed unit of Dalian Wanda, which owns the U.S.-based AMC Cinemas and Australia's Hoyts Chain.
